About the Role

Key Responsibilities:

Pricing Director will partner with stakeholders to:

- Develop, review, and execute pricing strategies for assigned compounds/indications within assigned areas. Responsible for ensuring alignment with program and brand strategies to optimize brand value and market access.
- Collaborate on pricing research with other IM functions, assigned countries/regions (as needed). Identify competitive trends, synthesize competitor price information (including biosimilars and generics), and trigger actions as required.
- Design and oversee global launch sequence optimization for assigned assets/indications. Coordinate with assigned countries and other International functions to ensure pricing and access are optimized as impact is felt across markets.
- Develop and co-create models to optimize pricing and access and recommend adaptations where appropriate.
- Provides input, as needed, into the price assessment of early-stage products and due diligence projects to validate price, dosing, endpoint, and comparator selection from a price implementation and realization point of view. Develop loss of exclusivity (LoE) strategy to help mitigate erosion in exposed indications.
- Be an expert on assigned countries and share knowledge regarding major developments in these markets.
- Interact regularly with assigned countries. For select markets, provide operational pricing scenario analysis on local price proposals for consultation and decision-making.
- Provide/withhold endorsement of product price proposals consistent with international governance at launch and any list & net price changes post-launch for assigned markets. Monitor local pricing and contracting implementation.
- Ensure support to countries for price certificates and other pricing-related documentation. Identify future price evolution events and ensure maintenance of these in our system for assigned countries. Leverage pricing analytics and coordinate with funds flow and finance to identify and manage non-profitable products.
- Enhance information exchange and best practice sharing on pricing across international functions, regions, and countries.

Essential Requirements:

- At least 5 years of relevant senior level experience at pharmaceutical companies, HTA or health care consultancy companies; pricing, access and commercial experience across multiple brands and multiple therapeutic areas.
- Bachelors (Masters preferred) in Math, Economics, Business Administration, Finance, Marketing, Health Policy, Health Economics, or advanced related fields.
- Excellent analytical skills and ability to extract and quickly process key information, summarize key needs, and provide targeted and appropriate insights and recommendations.
- Recent experience in above country (regional or global) role preferred.
- Strong external orientation with broad & deep therapeutic experience, healthcare systems and market insights.
- Track record of successfully working across functions (especially, Medical, Marketing, Strategy, Finance).

Desirable Requirements:

- At least 7 years of relevant senior level experience.
- Rare disease experience at medical, HEOR, access or Pricing level.
